

Arrowhead Camp

Some of the Daughters of the Arrowhead Camp of the Maricopa West Company gather around items they created to donate to charities in the Phoenix, Arizona area. Some are quilters and some like to crochet, so there was a beautiful variety of handiwork donated. At each monthly DUP meeting it was fun to see what new items were turned in to add to the collection. In all, by Jubilee time there were 19 quilts and crocheted blankets, 34 crocheted hats (for babies and adult cancer patients) and three sets of crocheted baby dresses with matching blankets. After being displayed at the Company Jubilee, the items were donated to the Mayo Clinic Cancer Center, Project Linus, which furnishes quilts to police departments and other emergency workers to comfort children in distressful situations, and Sewing for Babies, a local group that provides hospitals with clothing for premature babies and burial clothing for tiny ones who don't survive. The camp plans to continue making donations.
